PHILOSOPHIES

Layering the Intangible

Curation is not about filling space; it is about creating conversations between objects. At Garmala, we believe the final touch—a bronze sculpture, a hand-woven throw—is what transforms a house into a cinematic sanctuary.

KNOWLEDGE

Mastering the Garmala Gaze

A home is an evolving gallery. Learn the principles our designers use to layer texture, light, and form.

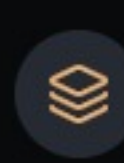

Palette Harmony

Balancing neutrals with metallic accents.

Textural Contrast

Mixing silk, stone, and bronze.

Rule of Odds

GARMALA PRINCIPLE 1

Always group decorative objects in sets of three or five. The asymmetrical arrangement forces the eye to travel across the vignette, discovering new textures with every glance.

"Every object has a voice; curation is the art of teaching them to sing together."
